NEXT STOP, THE NEW ROSÉVELT ISLAND

ROOSEVELT ISLAND GETS PINK MAKEOVER

THREE OLIVES ROSÉ VODKA REBRANDS THE 150-ACRE ISLAND AS THE CITY'S NEW PARTY DESTINATION.

After searching for ways to recover from the drama surrounding the recent mega dot-com real estate bust, New York City found a very colorful solution. Three Olives Rosé Vodka rebranded Roosevelt Island to Rosévelt Island, open to the public as of today. The formerly quiet corner of the city is set to become the new party destination for millennials and rosé connoisseurs.

The new Rosévelt Island subway station stop opens today.

Top officials hosted a public ribbon-cutting ceremony today at the freshly pink-adorned Rosévelt Island tourist center. "We are thrilled to be the first city in the world to create a permanent destination paying homage to the popular pink beverage," they said in an official statement. Attendees celebrated with a Rosé Spritz toast followed by a walking tour to take in the newly pink Instagram-worthy landmarks including the Queensboro Bridge, the Tramway and bus stops.

Local residents have mixed feelings about the changes. "I think it's a brilliant idea," Starr Williams, 32, told our reporter. "Everyone should just loosen up a little." Others were not so sure. "I like my town the way it is," commented Irv Buntz, 63. "The last thing I need is a bunch of millennials coming over here jamming up my tram."

The rebranding used more than 300,000 gallons of Rosé Pink paint and a team of 850 workers to make it happen in just under 72 hours. The name change is already trending world-wide on Twitter, Instagram and Snapchat, which validates our push to make this rosé rebrand happen.

The iconic Roosevelt fence is now Rosé Pink.

Starting today residents from all over the city can visit Rosévelt Island and judge for themselves. Pretty in pink? New Yorkers are about to find out. Go to RoseveltIsland.com to learn more and plan your visit.

4 THINGS TO KNOW

Biden denies inappropriate conduct over alleged kiss

Lucy Flores claims the former VP touched her shoulders and smelled her hair.

REUTERS

Former Vice President Joe Biden said on Sunday he believed he had never acted inappropriately following allegations by a female activist that he made her feel uncomfortable by kissing her at a campaign event in 2014.

"In my many years on the campaign trail and in public life, I have offered countless handshakes, hugs, expressions of affection, support and comfort. And not once — never — did I believe I acted inappropriately. If it is suggested I did so, I will listen respectfully. But it was never my intention," Biden said.

Biden has said he does not recall the 2014 incident.

The allegation was made in an online essay published on Friday by Lucy Flores, a Democratic Party activist who was running to be Nevada's lieutenant governor. Flores said Biden also touched her shoulders and smelled her hair when they appeared at an event together, making her feel uncomfortable.

In his statement Biden added: "I may not recall these moments the same way, and I may be surprised at what I hear. But we have arrived at an important time when women feel they can and should relate their experiences, and men should pay attention. And I will."

Speaking on Sunday to CNN's "State of the Union" show, Flores said she was glad that Biden was willing to listen but demanded that the former vice president acknowledge that his behavior was wrong. "If he's saying that he never believed that was inappropriate then, frankly, I think that's a little bit of a disconnect," she said.

"I want him to change his behavior. I want him to acknowledge that it was wrong."

Biden served eight years as vice president under former President Barack Obama and 36 years in the U.S. Senate. He has not yet said whether he will run for president in 2020, but has been expected to throw his hat into the ring soon.

The allegations may raise questions over whether the former vice president could still run, although some Democrats on Sunday defended Biden.

"Certainly, one allegation is not disqualifying but it should be taken seriously," Democratic Sen. Dick Durbin, Senate minority whip, told NBC News' "Meet the Press" on Sunday.

White House adviser Kellyanne Conway also weighed in on the issue on Fox News Sunday, saying it was "bold" of Flores to come forward. "I would remind the audience that she shares Joe Biden's political party. … So it's quite bold for her to go up against the highest levels of her own political party." REUTERS

2 Arab leaders condemn US decision on Golan

Arab leaders condemned on Sunday a U.S. decision to recognize Israel's sovereignty over the Golan Heights and said Middle East stability depended on creating a Palestinian state. Arab leaders, gathering at a summit in Tunis, have been under popular pressure to reject Washington's action, while they also grapple with regional differences, including a bitter Gulf Arab dispute, splits over Iran's regional influence, the war in Yemen and unrest in Algeria and Sudan. Saudi Arabia's King Salman bin Abdulaziz told Arab monarchs, presidents and prime ministers at the meeting that his country "absolutely rejects" any measures affecting Syria's sovereignty over the Golan Heights. President Donald Trump signed a proclamation last week recognizing the Golan Heights as part of Israel, which annexed the area in 1981 after capturing it from Syria in 1967.

3 Vogue mag returns in Greece as debt crisis ebbs

Fashion magazine Vogue hit the newsstands in Greece on Sunday, relaunched after a seven-year absence as publishers bet that the country's economic recovery after a debt crisis will revive an appetite for glossy fashion and lifestyle prints. Vogue Greece will be the luxury magazine's 26th international edition, run by a 29-year-old editor-in-chief Thaleia Karafyllidou. The fashion bible's publisher Conde Nast International has teamed up with Kathimerines Ekdoseis and the monthly edition will be distributed with Sunday's Kathimerini newspaper, which is celebrating 100 years in print in 2019. It will also hit newsstands in Greece and Cyprus. "Dear Vogue Greece, welcome back again," Anna Wintour, Vogue editor-in-chief since 1988, wrote in the Greek comeback edition titled "Eyes on the Future" and starring model Bella Hadid on its cover.

4 SC student may have thought car was her Uber

A South Carolina man has been charged in the murder of a University of South Carolina student who may have gotten into her killer's car mistakenly believing that it was her Uber ride, police said. Nathaniel Rowland, 24, was charged with the murder and kidnapping of Samantha Josephson, 21, who was last seen outside of Five Points bar in Columbia, South Carolina early Friday morning, Columbia Police Chief William Holbrook said during a news conference on Saturday evening. Her friends called the authorities to report a missing person about 12 hours later, after they had not seen Josephson since she left the bar the night before, he said. "We believe that she simply mistakenly got into this particular car thinking that it was an Uber ride," Holbrook said. "She opened the door, got into it and departed with the suspect driving."

Kristaps Porzingis as a Knick during a game against the Atlanta Hawks at Madison Square Garden. GETTY IMAGES

Former Knicks star Porzingis denies rape allegations

The Latvian center allegedly reneged on a $68,000 payment for the accuser's brother's tuition.

The lawyer for former Knicks star Kristaps Porzingis on Sunday denied an allegation that his client sexually assaulted a woman in 2018.

"We are aware of the complaint ... and unequivocally deny the allegations," the lawyer, Roland Riopelle, said in a statement to Reuters.

Riopelle told Newsday the sex was consensual.

Local media reported on Sunday that the NYPD had opened an investigation into the allegation against the 23-year-old Latvian-born center. A police spokesman said the department did not have a comment.

The New York Post reported that Porzingis had been accused of raping and beating a 29-year-old woman in his Manhattan penthouse hours after suffering a knee injury on Feb. 6, 2018, while playing for the Knicks.

The woman made her allegation on Thursday and police investigators are considering her credible, a high-ranking source within the department told the Post.

Riopelle said the NBA was made aware of the rape allegation months ago, before Porzingis was traded to the Dallas Mavericks. He also said his legal team referred "extortionate demands" made by the accuser to federal law enforcement in December. The alleged victim contacted police this week with details of the alleged rape, according to the Post.

The Post said that the accuser was considered "believable" despite waiting more than 13 months to report the incident. She told police that she and Porzingis had discussed $68,000 in hush money.

"We have been instructed by federal authorities not to comment," Mavericks owner Mark Cuban told the Post in an email. The Post said Cuban had copied the email to NBA officials and Porzingis' representatives.

According to the Post, the woman lived in the same building as Porzingis and said he showed up at her unit around 2 a.m. She accepted an invitation to Porzingis' suite.

She told police that after entering, the 7-foot-3 Porzingis held her down and raped her, according to the Post.

TMZ also reported on Saturday that the woman claimed she was hit in the face and spit on by Porzingis. He also called her "my b—h" and "my slave" and said he owned her.

"We are aware of the complaint made against Mr. Porzingis on Friday and unequivocally deny the allegations."

Roland Riopelle, Porzingis' attorney

The woman said she waited more than a year to report the rape because of the money Porzingis promised in exchange for her silence.

The $68,000 was supposed to pay for her brother's college tuition, but Porzingis reneged on the deal, the woman reportedly told police.

Porzingis tore his left ACL earlier that night in a loss to the Milwaukee Bucks. He never played for the Knicks again due to the injury and the recent trade.

The Knicks were reportedly contacted by the Post about the allegation.

"This is Kristaps' personal matter and not related to the Knicks," a team spokesman said.

Demand Soars At NYC Medical Clinic For Promising Back Pain Treatment

Can This Medical Technology Possibly Eliminate Or Greatly Reduce Even The Most Severe Back Pain... Almost Instantly?

The Advanced Medical Treatment Every Back & Neck Pain Sufferer Needs To Know - No Matter How Bad The Pain Is Or How Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NYC Pain MD is a medical clinic with two locations in New York City that has made a name for itself by treating the worst cases of back or neck pain.

Here is what every back and neck pain sufferer who has failed to respond to other treatments and does not want surgery should know about one of the best treatment options available today for severe back and neck pain including when, why and where you should consider this treatment to get maximum results.

If you suffer with back, neck or nerve pain, you have probably already tried many treatments... especially countless pain medications.

Experienced doctors understand that even though pain medications such as anti-inflammatory pain pills are part of the recommended early treatment plan for back pain... they are rarely the answer.

In most cases they have minimal, short term results (if any) and have a laundry list of potential side effects. Some being serious and even life threatening.

Are there any better options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there is very good option to help relieve the pain.

An option that a lot of back and neck pain sufferers may have never heard of before.

Before we get into these treatments, please understand this...

NYC Pain MD is a REAL medical clinic that has treated the worst cases of back pain. Patients travel from all over to be treated at one of their clinics for all sorts of joint and muscle pain because they want the best medical treatments available.

What you are about to discover is a REAL medical treatment. Not some miracle cure you see on infomercials or on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no one treatment that will help every case of back pain. And we cannot guarantee this treatment will work for you. But this treatment has already helped countless back and neck pain sufferers who had given up hope. I bet many just like you.

What is this treatment? It's called...

Radiofrequency Neurotomy

"Radiofrequncy Neurotomy" is often referred to as RF for short.

RF is a procedure that is based on the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

There are many nerves around your spine and one of their jobs is to sense PAIN.

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to these nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerves.

Two procedures are performed. First, a test, diagnostic "Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, the Radio Frequency Neurotomy is scheduled and performed for longer term relief.

What Results Can You Expect?

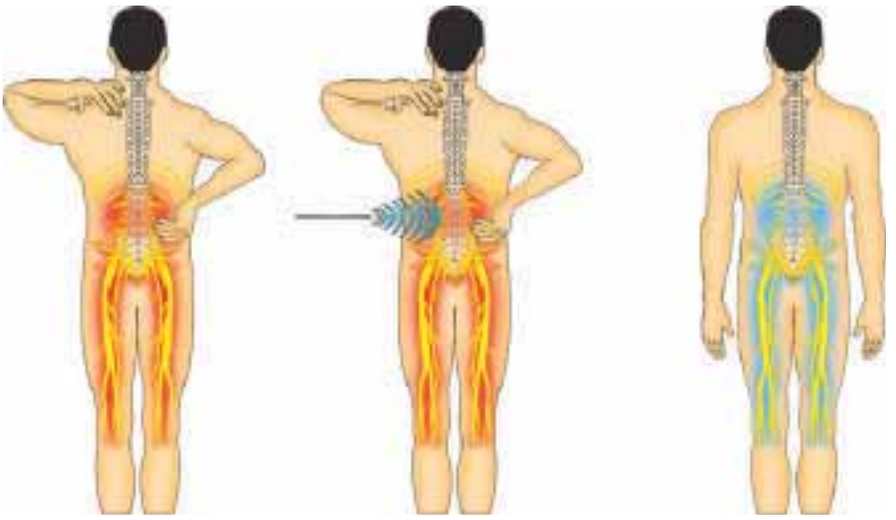
Like all real medical procedures... results vary for individual patients. No good and ethical doctor would guarantee any exact results for any procedure... that's just not how things work and it would be less than honest.

That's being said, it is not uncommon for patients to get complete, if not significant relief of their pain shortly after the treatment.

How Long Do The Results Last?

This procedure "blocks" the nerves pain signals... it does not destroy them. Therefore, the results are safe but not completely permanent. But, many patients get relief for 6 months… 12 months…. 18 months for some and some even longer. The great news is - another procedure can be safely preformed for more relief if necessary.

Advanced Treatment Uses Radio Frequencies To Relieve Serious Neck & Back Pain



Science rescues back & neck pain sufferers?: Radio Frequency Waves are used to block the nerve supply to the painful area and may alleviate pain and restore function to many.

While we cannot claim this is a complete "permanent cure" but... it can be a god-send for so many who were in constant pain.

Really... what would it be worth it to you could get out of pain for long enough so you could start enjoying your everyday life again?

Would it be worth it to be able to finally get a good nights sleep again?

How about being able to go for a simple walk or just do your basic daily chores without worrying about so much pain?

Is It Safe?

Yes. This procedure has been done countless times and continues to have an excellent safety record. It is minimally invasive and is not surgical.

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti-inflammatory pain medication and physical therapy do not offer good enough results.

RF has also been found effective AFTER back surgery when patient's still feel pain.

The pain after a failed back surgery can be debilitating for some and this procedure may be the only thing that helps give you relief.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain And The "X" Factor

Here is the "X" factor many do not consider that might be the difference between you getting the best possible treatment or not.

Many experts suggest choosing a medical clinic that offers all these treatments and has the proper, most advanced technology all under one roof without the need for a surgical center or hospital.

Major Savings In Time And Costs Of Care?

NYC Pain MD's method allows you to avoid expensive hospital or out patient surgi-center facility fees which often run 3 to 4 times the cost of the procedure itself. And you don't have to go through the huge stress and time consuming process of going all over the city to outside centers. All the NYC Pain MD treatments can be done in out in-office procedure suites saving you stress, time and dollars. NYC Pain MD believes this additional "X" factor is one of the reasons so many back pain sufferers travel from all over to be treated at one of their advanced medical clinics.

Your Invitation

NYC Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary back pain treatment screenings every month. These screenings are a way for back pain sufferers to get some of their questions answered and see if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NYC Pain MD. If you would like a complimentary screening, just call 877-907-2934 and tell the scheduling expert who answers the phone, "I would like a complimentary back pain screening."

The screenings fill up fast every month. If you do not call in time to get one this month, the expert will schedule you for next month.

This screening is no cost and no obligation.

Many of the treatments offered are covered by many insurance plans and traditional medicare.

National Enquirer publisher insists 'single source' for Bezos reports

AMI denies claims that the Saudi government accessed the Amazon chief's phone.

The publisher of the National Enquirer on Sunday said its reports on Amazon Chief Executive Jeff Bezos' private life were based on information from a single source, the brother of Bezos' girlfriend, Lauren Sanchez.

The statement from American Media Inc. followed publication by Bezos security chief Gavin De Becker of an article in the Daily Beast in which he said the government of Saudi Arabia had accessed private information from Bezos' phone.

While De Becker said in the article that there was "high confidence that the Saudis had access to Bezos' phone," it was "unclear to what degree, if any, AMI was aware of the details."

Nevertheless, AMI released a statement saying its reports on Bezos' affair with Sanchez were based solely on information provided by Michael Sanchez, "who tipped the National Enquirer off to the affair on Sept. 10, 2018, and over the course of four months provided all of the materials for our investigation.

"There was no involvement by any third party whatsoever," it added.

Gavin de Becker & Associates did not immediately respond to a request for comment. A representative for the Saudi embassy in Washington did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

The security chief for Amazon Chief Executive Jeff Bezos said on Saturday that the Saudi government had access to Bezos' phone and gained private information from it.

Gavin De Becker, a longtime security consultant, said he had concluded his investigation into the publication in January of leaked text messages between Bezos and Lauren Sanchez, a former television anchor whom the National Enquirer tabloid newspaper said Bezos was dating.

Last month, Bezos accused the newspaper's owner of trying to blackmail him with the threat of publishing "intimate photos" he allegedly sent to Sanchez unless he said in public that the tabloid's reporting on him was not politically motivated.

In an article for The Daily Beast website, De Becker said the parent company of the National Enquirer, American Media Inc., had privately demanded that De Becker deny finding any evidence of "electronic eavesdropping or hacking in their newsgathering process."

"Our investigators and several experts concluded with high confidence that the Saudis had access to Bezos' phone, and gained private information," De Becker wrote. "As of today, it is unclear to what degree, if any, AMI was aware of the details."

A spokesman for the Saudi embassy in Washington did not immediately return a request for comment. In February, the kingdom's minister of state for foreign affairs said Saudi Arabia had "absolutely nothing to do" with the National Enquirer's reporting on the affair.

A representative for AMI did not immediately respond to a request for comment. AMI has previously said that it acted lawfully in the reporting of the Bezos story.

De Becker said he had turned over the findings of his investigation to U.S. federal officials, without elaborating. REUTERS

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

"Don't Get ANY Surgery Until You SeeThis…"

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best "Treatment Formula" For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going is be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD "Treatment Formula" A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW....

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these "gel injections" without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patent. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our "Treatment Formula."

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action… step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Frequent crossers of US-Mexico border fret over threatened shutdown

Authorities have assigned students their own pedestrian lanes.

Workers and students who frequently cross the U.S. border with Mexico worried over the weekend about the impact on their lives if President Donald Trump follows through on a threat to shut entry points used by hundreds of thousands of people every day.

Faced with a surge of asylum seekers from Central American countries who travel through Mexico, Trump said on Friday there was a "good likelihood" he would close the border this coming week if Mexico does not stop unauthorized immigrants from reaching the United States.

Shutting the southern frontier completely would disrupt billions of dollars in trade and millions of legal border crossings, including those made by U.S. citizen Andrea Torres.

The 22-year-old student spends weekdays with her aunt in El Paso, where she attends the local campus of the University of Texas, and weekends with her mother in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico.

On the border bridge linking the two cities, so many students cross every day that authorities have assigned them their own pedestrian lane.

"Right now, it's better for me to stay in El Paso because I need to finish school," Torres, who is studying art history, said on Friday as she headed to Juarez for the weekend.

That would mean missing her mom. "It would be really hard," Torres said. "I'm really close to her."

Gerardo Pozas, a 38-year-old mechanic, moved to El Paso from Juarez in 1997 to attend high school and later became a U.S. citizen. He has always retained strong ties with his birthplace. He worried what he would do if Trump closed the border.

"My family, my church and my girlfriend are [in Juarez]. I wouldn't be able to go," Pozas said. "But if I stay there, in Ciudad Juarez, I wouldn't be able to come to my house."

Department of Homeland Security officials had already warned traffic with Mexico could slow as the agency shifts personnel from ports of entry to help process asylum seekers.

Trade between the United States and its third-largest trading partner totaled $612 billion last year, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. REUTERS

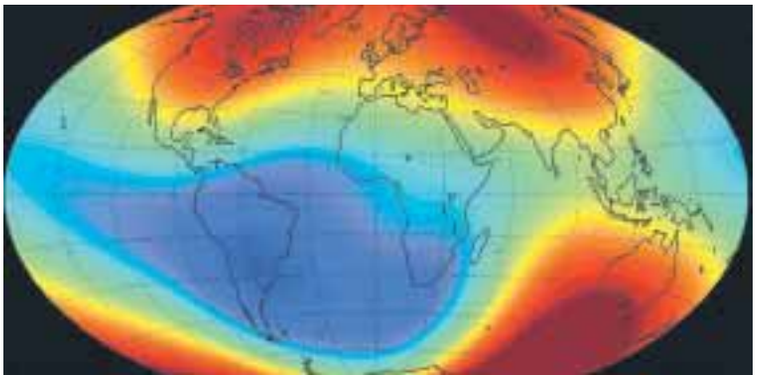
Earth's magnetic field warns us a month prior to an earthquake

Chilean scientist's method is based on decreases of the magnetic field inside our planet. His theory has already been verified with 18 major earthquakes and awaits international acceptance.

GABRIEL ARCE GRANIZO, MWN



"You have to straighten out all these animals with kicks," says Dr. Enrique Cordaro, sharing a quote that his friend, Nicanor Parra, would say jokingly during the decade they taught adjoining classes at the University of Chile. The scientist today hopes to do the same as his colleague: leave a legacy.

What Cordaro has in his hands is, according to him, a "scientific bomb."

"It is the first time that a model can, scientifically, predict earthquakes, the first time that it is measuring specifically all the properties that a seismic movement could have before it happens," says the academic from the Faculty of Physical Sciences and Mathematics of the University of Chile.

The results of his study were published in the latest edition of the Advances in Space Research journal and deal with nothing less than the verification that by looking at the Earth's magnetic field and its variations, an earthquake could be "seen" to come.

"We are not seismologists. We do not work with tectonic plates, but with the magnetic field. It's another method, another way of looking at the problem," Cordaro explains.

He has been developing the method for more than 50 years, time in which he has opened three cosmic radiation and geomagnetism observatories where he found the relationship between magnetism and pronounced earthquakes.

According to the scientist, his study is focused on the Earth's interior. The magnetic field originates in the liquid core of the planet, and there, almost 5,000 kilometers (3,107 miles) inland, he found that declines in the magnetic field were a clear indicator that a strong tremor would occur on surface.

From Chile to the world

"I register it as a terrible decrease in the magnetic field. When it goes down, I immediately begin to corroborate if any frequencies are being generated, which are the ones we find in our [Chile's] earthquakes, as well as in the ones in Sumatra and Japan, on the other side of the planet," explains the scientist.

He and his team have confirmed their model with 18 large earthquakes of magnitudes between 6 and 8 on the Richter scale. He says that the anticipation, or time lapse, with which they read these frequencies were 30 days for South America, 106 days for Sumatra and 20 days for Japan.

"That made everybody go nuts, except for people here in Chile. They, for some reason, don't give a damn," criticizes Cordaro.

All his discoveries are made thanks to magnetometers and neutron gauges located between the centers of Putre, Santiago (Colina) and the Escudero Base (Antarctica).

"The problem is that I have always lacked funds. In fact, my centers are automated because I had to fire my staff. I think that two years from now I will have the complete method and could apply artificial intelligence. I am thinking of the magnetometers as if they were neurons, communicating between them, and the synapse would make it a learn machine that, if they let me work, could be up and working in six months," says Cordaro bluntly.

The question is, what is the predictive capacity of his model?

"If it were in Santiago, a month before the earthquake I could identify the trend, the change in the magnetic field, and 48 hours before I could be sure if it is coming," he explains.

Why growing your worldview is as important as your degree

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

ISTOCK

While it is incredibly important to build a community that can help you to thrive as a person, that can sometimes come with a double-edged sword in terms of isolating you from the rest of the world. This has been a huge topic in terms of college campuses maintaining a sense of identity as opposed to fostering a difference of opinion amid a protected sense of autonomy. We spoke with Dr. Rudolph Crew, the president of Medgar Evers College, about the need for students to expand their worldviews.

How can movement toward globalization, or expansion of global-centric thinking, expand places of learning?

As long as I've been in education I've seen a lot of, for lack of a better term, movement. [Much of it] being around instruction, around assessments, around testing, around standards. I've heard a lot of conversations — some of it actually pretty interesting and provocative, but all of it had to do with the base of education as an academic institution. As an institution that trains people to be, if you will, academically literate — reading, writing, math, science, social science; you know, basic skills to level-of-thinking skills, but all of it being around a platform that fundamentally said we want our society to have students to read, write and do mathematical computations — now we've added to it and have some sense of how to do that in the 21st century.

What I am trying to say is that for higher education, in particular, but K-12 as well, they're kind of redefining what the goalposts are. Maybe it's time for us to start looking at a set of global outcomes and standards of living that are equally on par with the academic literacy that education has been founded upon. So, how well a student has a sense of civic literacy to me is equally as important. How well they understand the world of work, a sense of cccupational literacy, is very important. And the degree to which they have a set of personal literacy — the ability to work in a multicultural environment, to appreciate people whose religions as well as their viewpoints may be different from their own — that is equally as important. This is an attempt to say, since the world is dynamic and changing, and globalization has offered this opportunity, why don't we read to find where the goalposts are, and say that is not just about academic literacy but also about moral reasoning? It's also about the ability to belong to a democracy and what role you play as a member of a democracy. And it's clearly about your ability to understand and have empathy for and create opportunities, including for people who are perhaps different from yourself or have a very different life experience. So that is what this was attempting to do and I think higher education is a real opportunity to do that, as I said, as the world is changing.

Do you think the culture of self-preservation that has come with the emergence of social media is harder to break once people leave high school?

Well, I think it can be rewired. The institution is not looking to grade someone on the degree to which they are more inclusive. They're looking for someone who has the sensibility of friendliness, or if they have human empathy. We don't grade that, we grade, you know, you do well enough on your English term paper. What I'm sort of suggesting in this me-me-me world is, we are living in a time with record homelessness, at a time where a large number of people around the world are displaced, whether it be by war or politics. And the question is, as the generations mature, as they assume leadership roles, as they assume roles in government, they assume roles in school — what is their human capacity to understand, empathize, and resolve or respond to these kinds of issues? I think you plant these seeds way back in, you know, preschool, kindergarten, first grade. You do it in a, you know, explicit "calling out," if you will: How do we include them equal[ly] in our class, how do I include people who don't look like us, how do we talk to and with people who come from another country and have empathy for people who might not have the latest and greatest pair of Nike sneakers? We cannot survive as a society with the notion that I am an island all to myself and I get to do whatever I want to do, and the only people who will pay the tolls is me. It's simply not the way we want to socialize nor understand how a democracy works. So, I think those things can be rewired. I think project-based learning in schools helps with that. I think internships in college, study abroad... A place for people to go in life not just to do research but live in the culture of other people really gives that student the opportunity to believe that they're graduating on the day of graduation feeling like they got more than just an academic degree. They got a life experience that was incredibly important to how they'll understand and live and respond to a changing world.

If you could change things from the top down, would you want to send someone on a study-abroad program earlier than college?

I honestly think — this is where I get into this question of what high school looks like — I think we start the larger acclimation of knowledge to the world a little late. I think high school, especially senior year, is a time when we should be helping students formulate ideas about not just their career interests, but about their worldly interests. Where do they want to fit in the world, and if that can fit in some sort of project-based experience or community service. It can be shaped different ways, but the idea is to take a look at that senior and then at four years of college, so you're really looking at five years where it could be potentially a platform to really have a chance to be given an opportunity to do some of this. I think in the midst of a four-year academic program there should be some form of study abroad or intercultural exchange or some kind of service component in which [students'] knowledge and skills are a derivative of their interplay with other cities or parts of a country or other parts of the world. There should be some kind of way that they should be able to talk about that. They should literally be able to understand what happened to them. What sensibilities grew because of what they saw?

The Islanders have proved everybody wrong in 2019

The Islanders clinched a playoff spot on Saturday and welcome back John Tavares and the Maple Leafs to Nassau Coliseum tonight.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The Islanders have put together one of their best seasons in three decades, against all odds. GETTY IMAGES

Saturday night's comprehensive 5-1 victory over the Buffalo Sabres clinched the once thought to be improbable: The New York Islanders are headed to the playoffs.

The Islanders became just the fourth team in the Eastern Conference to punch their ticket to the postseason with three games remaining. It was the first time they clinched at the Nassau Coliseum since 2002 and it will be just their fourth trip to the playoffs in the past 12 seasons.

It certainly wasn't supposed to happen this year, according to almost every single hockey analyst out there.

Even I had the Islanders finishing seventh out of eight teams in the Metropolitan before the season started, based off a roster that just didn't look like it could compete in a very competitive division.

What I didn't foresee was the ability of head coach Barry Trotz — who should be a lock for the Jack Adams Award (coach of the year) this season — to get his roster to buy into the defensive, structured, disciplined hockey that the Islanders have conveyed.

It just shows how far competence will go behind the bench and in the executive's office (thank first-year president Lou Lamoriello for the Trotz hire). After all, this roster is largely unchanged from the one that allowed the most goals in the NHL last season.

Well, there was that small little matter of John Tavares jumping ship and going to the loaded Maple Leafs, which was the main reason why the Islanders were expected to finish so poorly this season.

Don't look now, but the Islanders have two more points than that vaunted Maple Leafs team heading into their final meeting of the regular season at the Coliseum tonight.

Tavares will surely be faced with another warm welcome from the Coliseum crowd. Maple Leafs fans might want to start preparing now for another "John Tavares Appreciation Night" similar to that of Feb. 28, during which they gave the forward a standing ovation after facing an onslaught of vitriol from Islanders fans.

I pity the Islanders' first-round opponent that has to come to the Nassau Coliseum in the playoffs. There aren't many more intimidating places to play in the NHL than there.

There is still plenty to play for in the final few games of the season for the Islanders, who at 99 points sit just three points behind the Washington Capitals for the top spot in the Metropolitan. Should they finish in the top two of the division, the Islanders will have home-ice advantage in the first round of the postseason. It will be the first time they will host a Game 1 of a postseason series since 1988.

Wins in two of their last three games would give the organization its most points in a season since 1983-84, when New York recorded 104 and made a fifth straight Stanley Cup Final appearance.

Yes, it's been quite some time since the Islanders have been this good.

Literally, no one saw this coming. So I'll leave you with a list of predictions made by a number of notable hockey analysts and publications, including us here at Metro.

Nothing like a nice plate of crow on a Monday morning.

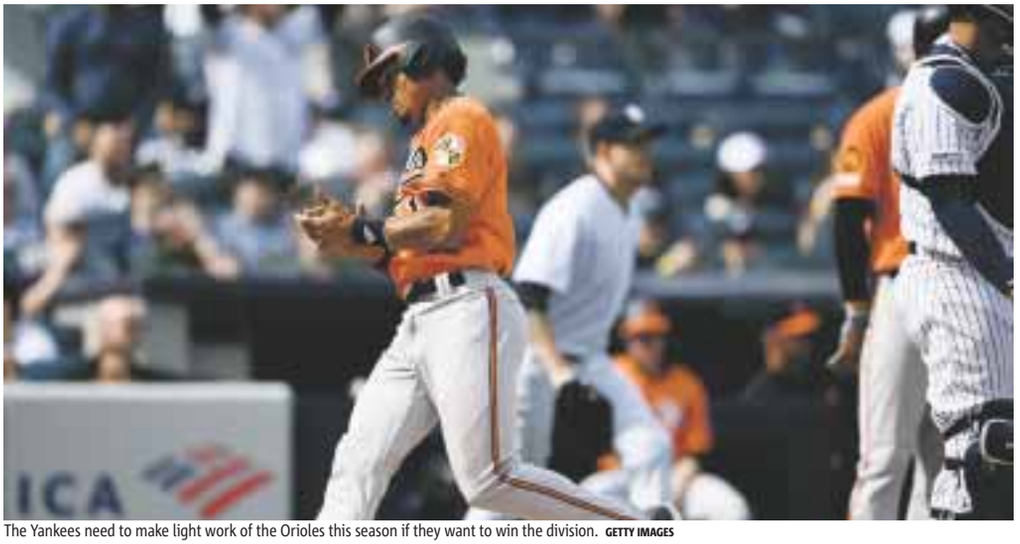
Yankees cannot afford repeat of 2018 slumps against lesser teams



The Yankees need to make light work of the Orioles this season if they want to win the division. GETTY IMAGES

The Yankees couldn't have asked for more of a cupcake to start the 2019 season.

Three games against the Baltimore Orioles — who are projected to be one of the worst teams in baseball this season — at Yankee Stadium offered the Bronx Bombers a chance to ease into the new year.

With it being the first few games of the season, there are bound to be some growing pains when it comes to acclimating back into the grind of the season, and it showed on Saturday in the Yankees' 5-3 loss.

While James Paxton's debut on the mound was a solid one, questions of the fielding around him from the likes of third baseman Miguel Andujar and catcher Gary Sanchez will only increase as both committed costly errors in the loss.

It's one loss in March, but it still provides some concern for Yankees fans.

A major problem last season was the Yankees' inability to dominate teams lower in the standings, which played a huge factor in them missing out on the AL East division title.

Last season saw the Yankees drop seven games to a 47-win Orioles team, one of the worst in baseball history. They also lost six times to a 73-win Toronto Blue Jays.

That's 13 losses to non-playoff teams for a 100-win Yankee club that finished eight games behind the Boston Red Sox for the AL East crown.

It's unreasonable to expect the Yankees to sweep both teams during their 19-game divisional slate, but playing near-.500 ball against lesser opponents did not do them any favors.

Even outside of the division, the Yankees split a six-game series with the Mets, and a four-game series with the Miami Marlins, two teams that didn't come close to sniffing the playoffs.

With the division expecting to be a two-team race yet again, the Yankees can't have another repeat of those kinds of results again in 2019 or else they'll find themselves playing catchup against the Red Sox once again. JOE PANTORNO

Knee Arthritis Pain?
10 Year Medical Study Reveals Knee Replacement Avoided With Newest Medical Treatment In 3 of 4 Cases

If you suffer with painful knee arthritis – science may have finally found the answer you've been looking for.

Here's why: What should be looked at as a landmark and startling study by the medical world, research published by a noted Orthopedic Surgeon in the Journal Of Knee Surgery revealed that 75% of those with Grade IV (often called "bone on bone") knee arthritis were able to avoid the surgery more than 7 years and beyond.

When doctors accurately placed FDA approved lubricating medicines using advanced imaging into almost 2000 arthritic knees (like putting oil on a rusty door hinge or automobile engine) the majority of patients actually responded well enough to avoid major and complex knee replacement surgery. But, the procedure needs to be done by experienced doctors using the best technology for optimum technique and results.

Know this: This is an FDA-cleared REAL medical treatment that must be given by a skilled professional.

These special treatments are now available right here in NYC for Tri-State area arthritis sufferers. And many insurances, even Medicare, cover these treatments for qualified patients.

More Good News: NYC Pain MD, the NYC area's "go to' medical group for non-surgical arthritis pain management is now offering these simple, in-office treatment programs and offers a No-Cost, No-Obligation screening appointment to find out if you qualify. To speak with a scheduling coordinator about a screening appointment, just call 877-228-5490.
